Congress To-day.

SENATE.-Mr. SMITH presented the credentials of the Hon. ISAAC TOUCEY, recently elected a Senator from Connecticut, for the period of six years. He qualified and took his seat.

Several petitions were presented, and other matters disposed of, when The Senate proceeded to the consideration of the deficiency bill. House of Representatives .- The House is not in session to-day.

Mr. Clay.

The following despatch appears in the Baltimore papers of this morning:

WASHINGTON, May 13 .- Mr. Clay is no worse to-day, and hopes of his recovery are entertained. Mr. Clay passed an uncomfortable time last night, but is better to-day. We know not upon what authority the above statement is made. The hopes expressed may be well founded; but our confidence in the recuperative energies of an aged person in his condition is not very strong. Still let us hope.

Much Ado About Nothing.

The Union of this morning is eloquently pathetic on the subject of General Scott's views-or the non-revelation of them, rather-on the subject of the Compromise; and Mr. Botts is the guilty person who has so excited its sentimen-

The whole pith of what the Union communicates on this head, however, is embraced in the following sentences.

"That there may be no mistake about the meaning of Mr. Botts when he commends General Scott to the favor of Virginia, he tells us, in another part of his letter, that, 'under the circumstances mentioned, he (General Scott) has come to the conclusion that the true co are for him to pursue is, to publish nothing, unless he shall be the nominee. This is to say, that in order to get the nomination, Mr. Seward and his party must be permitted to represent General Scott as opposed to the Compromise, whilst Mr. Botts and his allies in the South will be declaring all the time that directly the reverse is the truth.

"This is to say" no such thing, as the editor of the Union surely must know.

"To publish nothing unless he shall be the nomince," we are told by Mr. Botts, is the determination of General Scott. Now the nomination of a candidate will be the act of a convention comprising intelligent representatives fresh from the body of the people in each Congressional district of the United States. These representatives are to assemble at Baltimore for the specific purpose of naming the Whig candidates for the offices of President and Vice President. All questions legitimately therewith connected are familiar to these delegates. Whether to declare the views of the convention upon certain questions, or to make no declarations thereon, will be determined in the first place by the convention; and if resolved affirmatively, what declarations to make is within the discretion of the convention. Its free volition is, therefore, important to the healthfulness and harmony of the Whig party; and its actions should not be anticipated or embarrassed in any particular. A platform is the fashionable name for such declarations as the convention may choose to make.

What is required of General Scott by his Democratic and Whig enemies? Simply that he shall not await the determination of the convention, but that he shall lay down a platform for it; that he shall anticipate its resolves, and make a dec laration of his views upon either more or less of the subjects claimed to belong legitimately to his position than that convention may desire.

We think that a decent respect for the great national party of which he is a member forbids such a course; and that the only wise and just policy for him to pursue is, to acknowledge the right of no person or persons, other than that body, to demand a public proclamation of his opinions.

If there is a single subject of public interest his views upon which are not clearly known to every intelligent citizen of the republic, a full and frank avowal of those views may be demanded by the Convention; and if that body regards it as conducive to the welfare of the party to reaffirm the articles of its political creed, Gen. Scott's concurrence in such declaration must accompany his acceptance of the nomination.

Should internal improvements, retrenchment, and protection to agriculture, commerce, and manufactures, be deemed by the Convention matters of paramount importance, it will avail but little for Gen. Scott to respond that he has already revealed himself upon the Compromise; and should the Compromise be raised by the avail but little for him to point to his written opinions on the tariff. All, as we humbly conceive, that he can do in good faith toward his colaborers is, to approve or disapprove of those things that they unitedly believe to be the legitimate issues between the two great parties of the republic. To do less than this would be discourteous and uncandid; while to do more would be to transcend the prerogative of his position, as the chosen leader of the Whigs of the country. and to assume the attitude of a dictator.

We speak of General Scott as the candidate of our party, and of his acts in that position-of his body delighted. public and formal acts. His life is an open volume, and his intercourse with his fellow-citizens is ever frank, ingenuous, and without guile. No man has ever approached him and sought in vain to learn his views upon any public subject. There is not in Washington, this day, a well-informed Whig or Democrat, (and who is a truthful and candid man,) who does not know and acknowledge that General Scott's views on the particular question the Union has in view are as orthodox as those of any public man in the republic. The editor of the Union himself knows this, and, if he would testify, would so declare. But it should matter little to him, if he thinks with his late worthy associate, who, after six months' cajoling to provoke General Scott to make a publication of his opinions, finally declared that publication of his opinions, finally declared that in New York: "I will never stop at a 'Temper-such a publication, whenever made, could not influence his mind in regard to the General's bugs and Bibles." influence his mind in regard to the General's position! These are lovers of light and knowledge, truly!

Good Advice.

We quote the following remarks from the Brooklyn Daily Advertiser, a Whig journal of good tone and temper, which goes for the nominee, but prefers Mr. Fillmore first of all. Should this extract not please some who may read it, we beg them to remember, firstly, that we have neither made them what they are, nor penned this description of them: THE INTEREST OF THE WHIG PARTY .- In work ing for the interest of our party we should be careful to employ those means which will most rapidly promote them. Let us not be deceived e in our own ranks who have before deceived us; for there is a vital danger in trusting any man who, in violation of the confidence that has been placed in him, has secretly worked with the opposition by endeavoring to carry out his own narrow-minded views or personal aggrandizement. If a man publicly renounces a political position in consequence of his discovery of its erroneousness, he may be trusted, because the nonorableness of the act is a guaranty of his integrity. But each man, whatever may be his station in life-whatever may be his circumstances-no matter how poor or how rich-should so perform his public and private duties as not to suffer his fellow-citizens to discover him practising deceitfulness. Deceitfulness and treachery are almost synonymous terms: the man who is guilty of the former, practises the latter.

ose who are not for the party, heart and soul, and will not forego private and sectional feelings for the good of the whole, must be against is, and therefore the sooner they are read out of the Whig ranks the better. Every good and true Whig will bear and forbear, give and take, with those who have been tried in the cause, for the benefit and success of the object. We therefore call upon every Whig to beware of the enemy, particularly those in their own midst. Let them be perfectly satisfied that their organizations are freed from deceitfulness, corruption, and treachery; that every man who has sneakingly forsaken his colors and ignobly deerted his standard may receive the reward due his acts and character. Let those who pretend to be supporters of the Whig cause, and yet endeavor to subvert its basis of operations, be aid upon the shelf to be looked upon and de-The Whigs are strong in this country Let them work together as Whigs, triumph as Whigs, or be defeated on their own ground.

A Speech to the Point.

As we have very often commended brevity as an essential beauty in eloquence, no one will question our sincerity in commending the following, given by Mansfield, in his life of General Scott, denominated his Log Speech at Queenstown

"At this period the British force was estimated-regulars, militia, and Indians-at not ess than 1,800, while the Americans were reduced to less than 300. Retreat was as hopeless as succor, for there were no boats on the Canada shore, and the militia on the other side refused to give them aid. Scott took his position on the ground they then occupied, resolved to abide the shock, and think of surrender only when battle was impossible. He mounted a log in front of his much-diminished band. 'The enemy's balls, said he, 'begin to thin our ranks. His numbers are overwhelming. In a moment the shock must come, and there is no retreat. We are in the beginning of a national war. Hull's surrender is to be redeemed. Let us then die arms in hand. Our country demands the sacrifice. The example will not be lost. The blood of the slain will make heroes of the living. Those who follow will avenge our fall and their country's wrongs. Who dare to stand?' 'All!' was the answering

The Baltimore American of yesterday says that "not long since the Washington Union was frequent and emphatic in its assurances that the prompt approval of the Democratic National Convention would be given to the Compromise adjustment; and it took occasion to exult with much complacency at the rupture which took place in the Whig Congressional caucus on account of this very Compromise question. We take notice now, however, that the Union is entirely silent on the subject. No more assurances are forthcoming; a sudden cessation of utterance seems to have been induced either by an authori- the islands of the Pacific. an alarming consciousness of having said too much already, and more than will be made good.

Senator Downs, of Louisiana.

The Union, a few days since, contained an ablywritten and judicious biographical sketch of General Solomon U. Downs, one of the Senators from the State of Louisiana. General Downs has been named by some of his numerous friends as a suitable person to fill the second office in the government. This gentleman is a Democrat of the old panel of the Jackson school. His political career has been distinguished for ability, boldness, and ple. unswerving consistency. No man deserves distinction at the hands of his party more than this high-souled gentleman-this able and influential Democrat.

Finality. The Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier says: "GENERAL WINFIELD SCOTT, the noble, the evervictorious, patriot chieftain, from early manhood to the present time, has hazarded his life, his health, and his personal comfort, in defending the rights and honor of his country, and the lives and property of his countrymen; he is the hero of Chippewa, Lundy's Lane, Vera Cruz, Cerro Gordo, Chepultepec, and of the city of the Montezumas; he has led his fellow-soldiers through the dangers, the hardships, and the privations of Indian wars, amidst the swamps of Florida and the cholera upon the Mississippi: he was the active and vigilant commander and successful peace-preserver on the Canada frontier during the "patriot war," and he was the skilful "Pacificator" during the Northeastern Boundary difficulties: in a word, his whole life has been so prominently characterized by acts of heroism, consummate generalship, successful peace-making, and peace-preserving, and devoted patriotism, that the fact cannot be disguised or changed—he is the people's favorite—he is the first choice of a large majority of the Whigs of the Union-and it is his name which will call forth impulsive shoutings and popular jubilantings. With his name inscribed upon the banners, triumphant victory is 'inevitable.' This, in my humble judgment, is the finality of the Whig Presidential preferences, and of the approaching Presidential ampaign."

Oceanica. A large number of the islands in the Pacific are thus called. There are three great divisions— Australasia, Malaysia, and Polynesia. Australasia comprehends Australia proper, New Guinea, Van Dieman's Land, &c., mostly in British possession. Malaysia comprehends Borneo, Sumatra, Java, the isles of Japan, &c. Polynesia embraces the Sandwich islands, the Caroline islands, the Friendly isles, the Ladrones, the Marquesas, the Society islands, and thousands of others, making the numerous groups found in the Central Pacific.

Circumstances are about to give this portion of the earth a novel and important interest. Many of these groups, such as Australia and Japan, have within them extensive gold mines, which will soon excite the cupidity of the European race. In addition to this, our own country has been seized with a sudden ambition to adventure in that region, and enlarge in those ports the bounds of American commerce. We sent the exploring expedition there, and actually, according to the reports, discovered a new land-the Antarctic Continent. Then we are sending ships with a very polite letter to the Emperor of Japan, him to take it as a morning call, and desiring a further acquaintance with his interest-ng family. Besides all this, we literally go a "wool-gathering" there. We import some millions of pounds of wool from the Pacific, to say nothing of that nspiring, delightful plant-tea. In fact, it is plain we are about to make a more intimate acquaintance with the islands of the Pacific: and ow can it be otherwise? Our clipper-packets have got in a way of making the voyage in ninety days, which used to take six months. Our steamers go in almost no time, and soon we shall make a gigantic railway, whose cars will chase the set-ting sun to his bed in the West. We are opening new chapter in the world's history, and there s room enough in the Pacific islands for a very full and interesting chapter. We began with the Sandwich islands, and completely revolutionized their commerce, their manners, and morals. Yesterday we began California, and to-day it is a State-a young empire. We shall soon make other revolutions more startling than any yet known. But, in the meantime, what is Oceanica in its magnitude and characteristics? give the following statistics of that country from

Sq. Miles.	Population.
278,500	11,060,000
1,496,000	300,000
5,100	130,000
180,000	25,000,000
39,000	2,640,000
1,000,000	2,000,000
2,997.600	41,130,000
	278,500 1,496,000 5,100 180,000 39,000 1,000,000

This gives about fourteen persons to a square mile, in rich countries and mild climate, where twenty times that density of population may be easily supported. The entire population of the earth might very easily live well and happily in This illustrates the tative rebuke from some quarter or other, or by general fact that the earth has hardly yet begun to be inhabited as it might be in a high state of the cial arts and Christian civilization. islands of the Pacific were as densely populated as Japan now is, they would contain four hundred millions of people. Japan is comparatively civilized; but savage life, which prevails among the natives in many of the islands, admits of a very slow growth in population; in some cases it actually dies out.

The immense quantities of gold found in Australia will rapidly bring immigration to that country, as it did to California. When there they will find there are many other resources which will draw and sustain an agricultural peo-

In the Gallipagos islands, west of Panama, coal is said to be found in great abundance, thus onabling our steamships to supply themselves conveniently to make the voyage of the Pacific. This fact, taken in connexion with the railroad over the isthmus, will go far to establish a great steam route in that direction. So, also, there will probably soon be one from Oregon, where coal is also found. Steam lines across the Pacific, from the western coast of America, will go far to make great revolutions in commerce, and open the reources of Oceanica to the use of civilized man.

MINNESOTA .- A correspondent of the Albany Register, writing from Minnesota, says: "It is a singular fact that the ordinary birds and songsters so common in old settlements, and also the honey-bee, unknown here before, have migrated here with civilized man. The Indians say that the rattlesnakes follow in his wake also. Be that as it may, while they are numerous further down the Mississippi, they have not yet made their debut into this locality. In the neighborhood of Sauk Rapids, however, some have been killed, where, it is said, they were never seen till recently."

EXTRAORDINARY WAKEFULNESS. -A case of extraordinary wakefulness in this city has been recently brought to our notice. The subject is a person in good health, and of active and temperate nabits, and yet, we understand from his own statement, has not slept for a period of some four or five weeks; and what is not the least remarkable he has pursued his daily avocations without any personal inconvenience or discomfort more than usual. In making the above announcement, it is deemed proper to say that a large number of citizens of all parties, from the several Wards of the city, addressed to Mr. Maury a few days ago a communication expressing their wish to present his name to his fellow-citizens as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the ensuing election, independent of all questions connected with the politics of the day, and solely in consideration of his long and useful services in the Councils, and of his fitness for the place.

To this communication the following reply has been received:

"I have received your communication. Whatever might have been my personal wishes on the subject, it would have been difficult for me to resist the friendly call you have made upon me; but, agreeing as I do entirely with all that you have said as to the inexpediency of bringing national politics into our city elections, I most cheerfully place my name at your disposal as a candidate for the Mayoralty at the ensuing election.

THE MAYORALTY.

As the friends of other candidates for this office are already active in their behalf, I desire to present the name of the present incumbent, WALTER LENOX, esq., for re-election. It is to be expected that personal preference will, to some extent, govern the choice of many, but before the community generally, honest and discerning in its decision, is not the proper question, "What is the public interest?" It must be admitted by every reflecting citizen that sudden and uncalled-for change is not only unjust to the officer, but to the public interest. It takes away the personal motive and ambition which induce the faithful performance of duty, and loses to the public the benefit of official experience. If the present incumbent has discharged duties of the office with ability and zeal, and can hereafter bring to it the advantage of practical experience, I trust that the people of Washington will not use the elective franchise to their own injury and the injustice of a public officer.
